WELCOME

A message from the Rector

Welcome to Hasanuddin University (Unhas), where academic excellence, cultural diversity and global engagement come together to create a dynamic environment for learning and discovery.

Located in Makassar, one of Indonesia's historic maritime gateways, our university offers students and scholars a unique setting shaped by rich cultural traditions and strong connections to the wider world.

At Hasanuddin University, students benefit from a research-oriented and student-centred academic environment, supported by internationally experienced faculty members, modern facilities and a growing network of global partners.

We warmly invite students from all over the world to join our academic community and to shape a more sustainable and innovative future with us.

Prof. Dr. Ir. Jamaluddin Jompa, M.Sc.

Rector, Hasanuddin University

03 LIVE

Makassar, your new home

Makassar, home to about 1.5 million people on the island of Sulawesi, has been a maritime gateway for centuries. Bugis, Makassar and Toraja traditions live on in its dances, ceremonies and famous hospitality.

Food

Halal food is the norm. Try coto Makassar, konro and fresh grilled fish; vegetarian options exist but are limited, so ask before you order.

Climate

Tropical, 24–33 °C all year, with a rainy season from about November to April.

Safety

A friendly city. Keep valuables out of sight, use app-based transport at night, and save the KUI and admissions contacts.

Faith

Most residents are Muslim and a mosque is within walking distance almost everywhere. Churches and temples serve other communities.

Getting around

Ride-hailing apps (Grab, Gojek) are cheap and everywhere. Riding a scooter needs an Indonesian driving licence.

Living costs

About USD 160–500 a month, depending on how you live (page 15).

In their own words

“Studying at Hasanuddin University has been a great experience for both academic learning and personal growth. The professors are knowledgeable and approachable, and my supervisors are always supportive when I need guidance. The campus is beautiful and green, and there are many student clubs and associations that warmly welcome new members.”

Laurenz Thiele, Graduate School student from Germany

“The university provides opportunities to take part in community service and practical field activities. These experiences allow us to apply academic knowledge to real-world challenges, particularly in agriculture and food development.”

Binta Rosline Roberts, Faculty of Agriculture alumna from Sierra Leone, now a lecturer at the University of Makeni

“Serving as an international lecturer and specialist at the Faculty of Dentistry, Hasanuddin University has been a rewarding experience. The university fosters a dynamic academic environment that supports international collaboration, knowledge exchange, and the advancement of education and research.”

Prof. Babatunde Olamide Bamgbos, Professor of Oral and Maxillofacial Radiology, Bayero University, Kano, Nigeria

Frequently asked questions

- Do I need to speak Indonesian? Not for the English-taught programmes. For Indonesian-taught programmes you take the BIPA course first, and free volunteer-led classes help with daily life.
- How much does a whole degree cost? A regular-class bachelor's degree, living costs included, starts at about USD 18,600 over four years (page 16).
- Are there scholarships? Yes: UNHAS LEADS for citizens of developing countries, the Presidential Scholarship for research degrees, and the government's KNB and TIAS (page 17).
- Can I work while I study? No. The student visa does not allow paid work, so plan your budget without income from work.
- How long does the process take? About five months from application to arrival: up to one month for selection and about three months for the study permit and visa.
- Can my family visit me? Yes, on a visitor visa or visa on arrival, depending on their nationality.
- Is my degree recognised? Unhas degrees are accredited nationally and 83 programmes hold international accreditation. The medical degree has been recognised by the Malaysian Medical Council since 3 February 1995. Check your own country's rules, especially for Medicine and Dentistry.
- Is halal food easy to find? Yes. Most residents of Makassar are Muslim and there is a mosque on campus.
- Where will I live? In International Housing at Ramsis, the student apartments or homestay, or a private room (kos) near campus from about IDR 800,000 a month.
- Can I transfer from another university? Possibly, depending on the programme. Contact the admissions team with your transcript.
- Can I come for a semester or a summer first? Yes. Ask the International Office about exchanges, summer courses and the International Cultural Program.
